

Accessibility for People with Disabilities

AJU is committed to cultivating an inclusive, accessible, and safe learning and working environment for all members of our campus community.

AJU facilitates equal access for people with disabilities in the course of their work and studies at the University, including in the Jewish Learning Experience (JLE). AJU does not discriminate against people with disabilities, works to promote principles of universal design and access, and provides accommodations, when necessary, to facilitate access.

Notice of Non-Discrimination

AJU does not discriminate in admissions, employment, or any of its educational programs or activities. For more information, see AJU's Notice of Nondiscrimination.

Reasonable Accommodations to Facilitate Equal Access

Reasonable Accommodations Overview

Reasonable accommodations are modifications or adjustments that remove barriers and facilitate equal access for qualified participants with disabilities to AJU's educational programs or activities, including, for example, classes, practicums, and student group activities. Reasonable accommodations may include modifications to academic requirements or the structure of course examinations as well as the provision of auxiliary aids. Reasonable accommodations are adaptable to a student's need in light of the particular structure and expectations of the program and activity. Reasonable accommodations do not alter essential course requirements or academic standards, impose an undue burden on the institution, or risk the health or safety of the person or others.

AJU respects a student's right to confidentiality regarding their disability and requested accommodations. AJU will keep information related to a student's accommodation request confidential consistent with the Family Educational Rights Privacy Act (FERPA) and AJU policy, which designates student disability documentation and records as private educational records.
